Faubus Signs Own Teacher Retirement Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus today signed his teacher retirement bill and vetoed an alternate bill backed by the Arkansas Education Association.

In his veto message, Faubus said he felt his bill would "adequately protect the rights of teachers and afford them more take-home pay at this time."

The governor also signed a bill to set up a 9-member Special Retirement Study Commission, which will look into the teacher retirement matter and make recommendations to the 1963 legislature. It also will study other state retirement programs.

The Faubus retirement bill calls for the state to contribute to the Retirement System $3.7 million in the 1961-62 fiscal year and $3.9 million in fiscal 1962-63. It was presented as an interim method for handling the retirement problem while the commission makes its study.

The AEA had called for the state to contribute 9.72 per cent of total teacher salary, about $6 million, each year.

The legislature passed both bills giving the AEA measure an easy ride through both chambers. Faubus had to throw the full power of the administration behind his bill and in each house it was defeated the first time it came to a vote. Enough votes were switched to pass the bill on reconsideration in each house.

Faubus also vetoed a bill to bar prosecution in a state court of any person who has been cleared of an offense in federal court. Faubus said prosecuting attorneys over the state opposed the bill.

Other measures signed by Faubus today included:

A bill to prohibit school districts from spending a lesser per centage of their local funds for teacher salary next year than they did this year.

Bills to tighten up on obscene matter and to control use of fireworks.

A bill to increase membership of the War Memorial Stadium Commission from 9 to 15.

A bill to permit afternoon racing one day a week at the West Memphis greyhound track.

A bill to require Supreme Court law clerks to be registered attorneys.

A bill giving municipal judges increased authority to assess penalties against traffic offenders.

A bill to require payment of sales tax on automobiles bought in Texarkana by persons not living in Miller County.

State Group to Farm Union Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of about 50 Arkansas members of the Farmers Union arrived Monday for the organization's three-day annual convention.

Headed by L. J. Bryson, Prescott, state president, and Lewis J. (Red) Johnson, Little Rock, secretary-treasurer, the group visited with members of the Arkansas congressional delegation during the day.

Catholics Ask Assistance for Their Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic hierarchy of the United States said today that "to grant federal assistance to only part of the American educational effort is to deny to the other parts the chance to grow."

The prelates did not ask that parochial elementary and secondary schools be given the same outright grants provided public schools under the program sponsored by President Kennedy, a member of the Catholic Church.

But they again urged a program of long-term, low-interest loans for private and parochial schools to match any that might be made available through a federal aid program for public schools.

Msgr. Frederick G. Hochwalt, director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference Department of Schools, outlined the churchmen's views in testimony prepared for the Senate subcommittee on education. The NCWC, made up of U.S. bishops, archbishops and cardinals, is the spokesman group for the nation's Catholic hierarchy.

Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff Monday refused to express any view on the idea of federal loan aid to church and other private schools. He said he would want to study any such bill before commenting.

However, Ribicoff urged that any effort to provide federal help to private schools should be in a separate bill and not be tacked on to the administration's $2.3-billion three-year program of federal aid to public schools.

The secretary testified before the Senate subcommittee.

Transportation Aid Plan Changed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The State Board of Education has modified its method of allocating school transportation aid starting next July 1.

The change followed legislation adopted by the recent General Assembly increasing the amount of aid.

The board, at a meeting Monday, set a minimum of $20 and a maximum of $42 on aid to a district for each child transported by school bus. This is $4 above the formula which has been used since 1951.

The board decided to base allocations on attendance figures of the prior year instead of the average of the past two years. This change was designed to help fast-growing school districts.

Legislature Hiked Taxes With 3 Bills

(Editors: This is the second in a series of articles interpreting the 1961 Legislature.
By JOHN R. STARR
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The 1959 Legislature prided itself for the absence of new tax legislation, but three bills which have the effect of a tax increase were passed.

One of these — a bill to plug loopholes in the existing use tax law — will bring in an estimated $500,000 in additional revenue each year. Paying will be firms which have been avoiding taxes by buying certain industrial equipment and supplies out of the state.

Car owners were affected by the other two measures. One increase in the title registration fee from 50 cents to $1 and will yield an estimated $140,000 a year. The other sets flat $15 and $22 license fees for passenger cars and the Revenue Department hasn't been able to say for sure how much additional revenue it will yield.

The use tax bill was opposed vigorously by the Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce which contended its passage would hinder the state's industrial effort. The chamber backed an alternate measure to put the present use tax exemptions into the sales law.

Both bills were designed to eliminate inequities and to encourage manufacturers to buy equipment and materials in Arkansas.

Under the old law, a businessman could buy an item outside the state without paying a tax while he would have had to pay the 3 per cent sales tax if he bought it in Arkansas. The 3 per cent saving caused many to go outside the state for supplies that could be obtained here.

For the record, the use tax is in effect, a sales tax on items bought outside the state.

Ferry County Rep. Paul Van Dalsem, chief backer of the bill which became law, estimated that its passage would mean an annual increase in revenue of $5 million.

"We'll get another $2 million in use tax and another $3 million in sales tax on items they'll buy in Arkansas now that this law has passed," Van Dalsem said.

Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney is not as optimistic, but he did say that the increased sales tax yield probably will be larger than the increase in the use tax. He said the use tax figure should go up about $500,000 and

Congolese Soldiers Are Running Wild

By DENNIS NEED

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Malayan U.N. patrols today beat the bush to reach 300 white missionaries, businessmen and nuns in rebel-held Kivu Province as the first rescued told of atrocities by rampaging Congolese soldiers.

Some Americans were among the whites trapped in isolated jungle outposts as rescue forces were rushed out.

U.N. headquarters received a tearful typewritten plea from a Belgian nun: "Can no one help us from outside?"

The Congolese soldiers were running wild in a siege of terror that began more than two weeks ago in the Maniema region. Kivu officials, who refused to let the whites leave the chaotic province because their skills are needed, apparently were unable to keep their own forces in hand.

Only fragmentary reports came from the Malayan U.N. troops rushed into the area dominated by Lumumbists.

No word had been heard from a patrol sent to rescue an American missionary girl who was raped by four Congolese soldiers and told she would never be allowed to leave the province alive.

Three Belgian nuns — one 75 years old — were among 20 brutally beaten Europeans brought to Leopoldville.

One told of a raid on the Kasanga mission. The nuns were hauled off to prison and forced to strip, and two ladies "were brought away and violated throughout the whole night."

The terror in Kivu came to light as the Congo's anti-Communist political leaders arrived in Elisabethville, capital of Katanga Province, after their talks at Tananarive, Madagascar.

A crowd of about 10,000 cheered President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, President Joseph Kasavubu of the Leopoldville regime.

The United States gave cautious approval to their plan for a Congo confederation of semi-independent states divided along tribal and economic lines. State Department press officer Lincoln White told newsmen in Washington the United States also hopes that Soviet-backed Antoine Gizenga, head of the Lumumbist regime in Stanleyville, will join in the negotiations establishing the confederation. Gizenga snubbed an invitation to the Tananarive meeting.

Bus Companies Ask Rate Hike

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Commerce Commission has set a hearing for April 17 to hear requests from 15 major bus companies for a five per cent rate increase on Arkansas routes.

The bus lines said mounting costs of operation forced them to ask for the fare increase. They received a 10 per cent passenger fare increase in 1959, and put it into effect immediately.

The companies also seek to adjust fares upward to the next highest "0" or "5" digit.

Great Lakes Area Hit by Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A slow-moving storm slapped a broad area from the Great Lakes into New England today with snow, sleet and icy rains. Upper New York state took the brunt of the storm with snow falls ranging up to five inches.

The Weather Bureau warned of hazardous driving conditions throughout much of the area and advised that new snow accumulations of four inches or more were in prospect for Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Rochester and Syracuse, N.Y., already reported five inches of new snow in a six-hour period. Albany, Utica and Binghamton reported two inches.

Below the freezing line rains, at times locally heavy, drenched much of the Ohio Valley, Pennsylvania and southern Michigan.

Rains continued to fall in Florida and the Pacific Northwest. Brookings, Ore., reported an inch of rain and the Seattle-Tacoma, Wash., area nearly as much.

Skies generally were clear in the Plains states, the Southwest and the western Gulf region.

Assures JFK Would Never Use Troops

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy said in an interview in the current issue of Look Magazine that the Kennedy administration would never be forced to use federal troops in a school integration crisis such as the one in Little Rock in 1957.

He said the situation could have been handled by federal marshals who are "well equipped to handle the job."

Kennedy said he cannot conceive of the present administration allowing such a situation "to deteriorate to that level." Apparently he meant the rioting that took place in 1957 when then President Eisenhower called out federal paratroopers to enforce integration after Gov. Orval E. Faubus had called out National Guard troops to block it.

The attorney general said he takes the Supreme Court's 1954 desegregation order seriously, but added that he thinks the court realized the broad-scale change the decision would make in the South.

"I think the court recognized this when it ordered integration with all deliberate speed 'instead of immediately.'"

JFK Asks $600 Million to Aid Latin America

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today urged Congress to provide $600 million as the first step in aid to Latin America. He said there is "grave and imminent danger that desperate peoples will turn to communism or other forms of tyranny" if help is not forthcoming.

The President sent a special message to the Capitol in a follow-up to his address Monday night calling for a 10-year cooperative aid program of "lowering dimensions" for south of the border nations. He advocated holding a banner with this motto: "Progress yes, tyranny no."

The administration program outlined by Kennedy in a White House speech to Latin-American diplomats—is keyed to the idea of an alliance of progress. He wants the Latin-American countries to join with the United States in a massive drive to improve living conditions and thereby help out "tyranny from a hemisphere in which it has no rightful place."

Kennedy made it clear he had Cuba and the Dominican Republic specifically in mind in saying this.

In his message today, the President asked Congress to appropriate $600 million as an initial step in the over-all aid program, to meet a U.S. commitment made last year at Bogota, Colombia.

Eighteen other American republics also subscribed to the idea of mutual help. The U.S. share was authorized by Congress at the last session, but the money hasn't been provided yet.

Congress also authorized $100 million in aid last year for reconstruction and rehabilitation of areas of Southern Chile devastated by earthquakes and fires. Kennedy urged speedy appropriation of this money "so the task of rebuilding the economy of Southern Chile can proceed without delay."

In calling for fulfillment of the U.S. commitment at Bogota as part of the administration's general aid program, Kennedy told Congress: "The Act of Bogota marks an historic turning point in the evolution of the Western Hemisphere. For the first time the American nations have agreed to join in a massive cooperative effort to strengthen Democratic institutions through a program of economic development and social progress."

Five Plead Innocent to Spying

By TOM REEDY

LONDON (AP)—An American couple and three others charged with stealing naval secrets and passing them on to the Soviets pleaded innocent today at the opening of Britain's biggest spy trial since atom spy Klaus Fuchs was convicted a decade ago.

The famed main courtroom of the Old Bailey—where Fuchs was found guilty of giving the Soviet Union the keys to the atomic bomb—was filled as the case opened before Lord Parker, the chief justice.

The accused are:

Gordon A. Lonsdale, 37, company director holding a Canadian passport but believed by the government to be a Russian.

Peter John Kruger, 50, book-seller, and his wife, Helen, 47, who the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation says are Morris Cohen and his wife, Lola, American citizens and former residents of New York City.

Harry Frederick Houghton, 55, and his fiancée, Ethel Elizabeth Gee, 46, both British civil servants.

The government claims they stole secrets from the British navy's underwater weapons base at Portland—where Miss Gee worked—and passed them to Moscow over a high-speed radio transmitter hidden in the Krugers' home.

Among the secrets which came into their hands, the prosecution claims were drawings of Dreadnought, the British nuclear submarine based on designs supplied by the United States.

The attorney general, Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, headed the prosecution. The government contends that Houghton and Miss Gee passed secret information to Lonsdale who relayed it to the ring's communication center—the innocent-looking bungalow in suburban Ruislip occupied by the Krugers.

The trial is expected to last a week. Conviction carries a minimum penalty of three years and a maximum of seven.

The five were arrested Jan. 7, at a preliminary hearing last month the prosecution told of elaborate espionage apparatus including devices for producing microscopic copies of messages and Chinese scrolls containing secret compartments.

Midwest Hit by Heavy Winds, Rain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A turbulent storm raked the Midwest with damaging winds and heavy rains today after spawning more than a score of tornadoes which smashed paths of destruction through Missouri and Arkansas.

One woman was killed and at least 57 persons were injured Sunday as swirling winds crumpled homes, toppled radio towers and blew automobiles off highways.

Property damage was extensive in the two-state area. Repairmen struggled to restore communications disrupted by downed lines. Felled trees barricaded roads. Heavy rains, flash floods and hail impeded rescuers.

A tornado swirled out of the darkness near West Plains, Mo., and shattered the little frame Friendship Baptist Church in which 30 persons were attending Sunday evening services. Frances Huddleston, 42, was killed. Her husband, Dr. J. A. Huddleston, 43, was seriously injured while 10 other churchgoers suffered lesser hurts.

The twister destroyed a filling station and damaged several other buildings near the church. Earlier, the same tornado destroyed a store, filling station and home at Hardenville, about 25 miles southwest of West Plains.

Six persons were injured near Tipton Ford, about seven miles south of Joplin, Mo., where a twister destroyed at least two homes, damaged several others and hurled a pickup truck against a tree.

Three of four radio towers of station KWTO were blown down by a tornado that struck about three miles south of Springfield, Mo. Several farm buildings also

THE STORY: Keepers of dives and deadfalls in the rough mining town of Midas Hill are wary of the new night marshal, Chris Waddell. Chris, already prevented a holdup of a large amount of currency carried by Norma Vespasian for the Miller-son store.

CHAPTER VIII

On reaching his room, Chris Waddell put his belt and gun on the bed, took off his jumper and tidied himself up a bit. Then he went in to supper and Mrs. Crowder and her son, Lorrie, had their first glimpse of the badge Waddell had elected to carry. Mrs. Crowder spoke.

"You're — not taking Marshal Scorbie's place?"

Waddell shook his head. "I'm his new night man."

"Then you'll want your sleep during the day?"

"Most generally. Will that be all right?"

"Of course. It will be just as it was when Mr. Belsen was with us. Lorrie, this is Mr. Waddell, the gentleman I was telling you about."

Lorrie Crowder was a wiry, agile lad, with a ten-year-old's lankiness of leg and flank. His face was thin, nut-brown, his eyes blue and quick and intelligent.

Now he studied Chris Waddell with a solemnity that moved Waddell to a faint smiling.

"What's the verdict, Lorrie?"

The boy's glance dropped and he squirmed in his chair. "I was — just wonderin'."

Mrs. Crowder exclaimed her quick reproof. "Lorrie! What a thing to say! Beg Mr. Waddell's pardon—immediately!"

Waddell's smile widened. "Lorrie's got a right to wonder, it seems. In his place I'd wonder, too."

Lorrie, though abashed, stood his ground. "I know what the miners say, Ma. That Rufe Belsen was a coward. That he talked big and slapped the drunks around. But when the Spooners took after him he lost his nerve and run."

"You can quit wondering about me and the Spooners, Lorrie. I'm not going to run."

The interval between the Crowder home and Summit Street was full of night's early gloom. Crossing it, Chris Waddell paused for a glance at the Vespasian cottage, marking the yellow lamp glow in the windows.

As he turned on Ute Street, the old, challenging prescience rippled across his nerve ends. Here was that invisible deadline, beyond which the words and acts of men took on a different sound and meaning.

With Frank Scorbie a few hours earlier, Waddell's survey, particularly in detail, had of necessity been sketchy. Only one deadfall, the Belle Union, had they actually entered, and there were a number of such along this street. The Staghorn, The Nugget, The Deuce High and the Last Chance.

This careful survey was product of a lesson he had learned, partly from the teaching of canny older men of the law whom he had served with, and partly from the heavy and bitter hand of experience. For when a man carried the badge in a tough town, then it behooved him to know the physical layout of that town as he knew his good right hand.

He made the tour without event and returning to the office, lit the lamp, had another look at the sleeping Scorbie, closed the door of the rear room, and sat up at the desk for a smoke and a rest. Steps, followed by a knock, opened the door.

"What can I do for you?"

The newcomer pulled up a chair. His glance, as it moved about, reflected a searching familiarity with this room.

"Understand you did my girl a considerable favor, Waddell. Norma, she'd have felt pretty bad if that spec she was bringin' in for Jack Millerson had got away from her. I'm thanking you."

"Glad I was handy," Waddell acknowledged briefly. "Didn't amount to much."

More solidly he added, "In your boots I'd give Millerson a piece of my mind. Playing messenger for gold specie through rough country is no chore for a girl."

"Won't happen again," Vespasian assured him. "Though it wasn't Millerson's fault entirely. Norma's pretty self-reliant and knows her own mind."

It was easy to understand why Mike Vespasian was no longer marshal of Midas Hill. Too strict, was Frank Scorbie's explanation. The real reason, decided Waddell, was that here was a man too solid to ever compromise his self-respect and personal integrity, or try and stay in favor by mixing in the dirty political mire of Ute Street.

In the back room a gusty snore sounded. Mike Vespasian tipped his head. "Scorbie?"

Waddell nodded.

"Too bad. He wasn't that way when he first took over here."

Recluse Is Captured by Police

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—A rifle-wielding recluse and his father who stood off officers in a five-hour gun battle Saturday night were held today on an open charge.

Police captured Willie Albert Ballard, 45, a former mental patient, after using a jeep and a rope to smash apart the barn in which he was barricaded. His father, 70-year-old Wes Ballard, had fled from the barn during a tear gas siege.

Officers surrounded the isolated barn near Strong, Ark., after Willie Ballard shot and wounded a deputy sheriff who had gone to reclaim a horse which had been running loose.

The Ballards, both heavily bearded and wearing tattered clothes, were locked up in county jail here.

Deputy Reed Fike, 47, was in serious condition, but reported improving, in a hospital here.

Fike was struck in the chest by a bullet as he and two other men approached the barn. The companions, Riley Ward, a Negro and Louie Walton, both of Strong, were not hurt.

Officers had to use a jeep to bring Fike out from the remote area.

The horse was shot and killed by an officer who thought it was the armed Ballard.

"I don't know if my boy's alive, but you've done killed my damn horse," the elder Ballard sounded at the street door. He lifted brief call.

"All right!"

The man who entered was the one who had ridden in at the dwelling next to Mrs. Crowder's, earlier in the afternoon. He announced himself bluntly.

"Vespasian is the name—Mike Vespasian. You're Waddell?"

Waddell nodded. "What can I do for you?"

The newcomer pulled up a chair. His glance, as it moved about, reflected a searching familiarity with this room.

"Understand you did my girl a considerable favor, Waddell. Norma, she'd have felt pretty bad if that spec she was bringin' in for Jack Millerson had got away from her. I'm thanking you."

"Glad I was handy," Waddell acknowledged briefly. "Didn't amount to much."

More solidly he added, "In your boots I'd give Millerson a piece of my mind. Playing messenger for gold specie through rough country is no chore for a girl."

"Won't happen again," Vespasian assured him. "Though it wasn't Millerson's fault entirely. Norma's pretty self-reliant and knows her own mind."

Brownies Has Tea

Members of Brownie Troop 4 entertained with a tea for their mothers and grandmothers Wednesday afternoon in the home of their leader, Mrs. D. L. McRae Jr.

Beth Lambert and Debbie Hooks greeted the guests and Kathy Muse pinned a small corsage at the shoulder of the guests. Colorful arrangements of daffodils and hyacinths formed the background.

Neighbors said the Ballards had lived in the barn for years and that they carried rifles on their periodic trips out of the area to buy supplies.

Willie Ballard defied the gas and screamed at officers and volunteers who surrounded the barn using floodlights to illuminate the area.

Americans Urge Release of Fliers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today 25 American private citizens who were in Moscow last November urged release of the two RB47 U.S. fliers as "a healthy first step" toward improving Soviet-American relations.

President Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, told a news conference, in response to questions, that the group of 25 included two men who now are aides to Kennedy. They are Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner, special assistant for science and technology; and Dr. Walt W. Rostow, deputy assistant for national security.

Salinger said Wiesner and Rostow were in Moscow in November — shortly after Kennedy's election — with 23 other Americans to attend a scientific conference there. Salinger said the entire group of Americans was in Moscow as private citizens. He added it is his understanding that Soviet officials asked the Americans how relations could be improved.

"My information is," Salinger added, "that all 25 indicated that release of the fliers would be a healthy first step."

The White House statements came against a background of clamor from Republicans to know whether secret concessions were made for release of Capt. Frederick B. Olmstead of Elmire, Tonganoxie, Kan.

It also followed publication by the New York Herald Tribune of a Washington dispatch saying Rostow and Wiesner laid the groundwork during a November Moscow visit for the release of the fliers.

Olmstead and McKone, released last January, had been held by the Russians since July 1. They are the only known survivors of the six-man crew of a U.S. plane downed in the Barents Sea by a Russian fighter plane.

Today, Salinger was asked about the background on the negotiations which led to release of the fliers. He replied that the government started making representations immediately after the fliers were shot down and taken prisoner.

He said these representations were pressed on an intermittent basis during the Eisenhower administration, and were continued when Kennedy took office.

Asked whether Wiesner and Rostow had discussed the possibility of the release of the fliers with Kennedy prior to discussion of the matter in Moscow by the 25 Americans, Salinger replied: "I don't believe so."

The Herald Tribune story said the Soviet Academy of Sciences and set forth this timetable for action before any summit meeting or trip by Kennedy to Russia.

Return of the RB47 fliers, completion of nuclear test-ban negotiations; a dignified meeting of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Kennedy in New York to sign a test-ban treaty; progress on disarmament; and free elections

Wayward Father's Return Blocks Foster Parents

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:
I am a foster mother. We took in two girls to save them from an orphanage. Their mother died and their father disappeared. That was eight years ago. We've come to love the girls like our own daughters.

Now we have a double problem: the older girl, 13, won't mind me any more, and their father is back. We want to adopt them but he says no. They feared him as wee things and, after we got them, were afraid to be left alone for fear he might come and take them. I taught the older one to embroider and sew. Now she's lost interest in that. She just sits. I took her to our family doctor. He couldn't find anything wrong. Maybe if her father would let us have her and her sister she would be all right. —Worried Foster Mother

Dear Worried Foster Mother: Your two problems may be interrelated, but should be considered separately.

The older girl at 13 is entering adolescence. Her moods will pass.

Continue to give her love and understanding. My pamphlet, "How to Get Along with an Adolescent," will be helpful and will be sent to you on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

The father should be dealt with by a third person; your lawyer, minister or doctor. You've had the welfare of his daughters at heart. He hasn't else he wouldn't have deserted them. If you want to adopt the girls, let an outsider negotiate. He can handle this better than you who are emotionally involved.

Dear Helen:

I am divorced and have a small child. I was 17, my husband 18 when we married. I blame his people; he blames mine. In court he was granted rights to see our daughter a couple of hours on certain days.

My people don't allow him to see the child. I take her downtown secretly to meet him. She doesn't know him well enough to go to him. My people say I am crazy to have anything to do with him.

I said my love for him had died but every time I see him I know this is not true. He says he has grown up and would like for us to remarry and start over. What should I do I love my Mother and Daddy and hate to hurt them but I love my man. —J. L.

Dear J. L.: Be strong. If you love this boy, who is the father of your child and has been your husband, follow your heart.

Dear Helen:

How old do you think a person should be before traveling let's say from Toronto to Florida I am a very responsible person who has traveled by myself. I am over 12. —Traveler

Dear Traveler: Twelve is a bit young for a little girl to travel alone. Even though you are responsible and experienced, others

State Still Cleaning Up Storm Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas today still is cleaning up from its worst seige of tornadoes since the 1952 storms that killed 111 in the central part of the state.

Strangely, and happily, the dozen or more tornadoes that filled through Arkansas Sunday didn't kill anyone. The Red Cross said 48 persons were injured, but only two were in critical condition.

However, property damage was in astronomical figures. Some said over a million dollars. Some said more. The exact figure probably never will be known.

Clear skies prevailed over the state Monday, and more clear and mild weather was forecast for today.

The Red Cross said 500 families were affected by the storms. Some were left homeless and disaster stations were set up to take care of those who did not have friends or relatives to lodge them.

A Red Cross relief office was to be set up in Little Rock.

The hardest hit areas were near Eureka Springs, near Clarksburg and near Conway. Five separate twisters were reported in the Harrison area but damage was light, compared to that in the Conway-Vilonia area where fifty homes were destroyed or damaged. At Witt Springs, in Searcy County 17 homes were destroyed.

Reports of tornadoes continued to straggle in Monday. One twister cut a half mile wide path through northern Boone County, causing considerable damage in the Myrtle community. No injuries were reported.

The Ark and Yucana communities east of Meina reported considerable damage, but there were no injuries. One couple said they lay in a ditch as a funnel cloud smashed their home about 20 yards away.

Power and telephone lines were ripped out throughout north Arkansas, and service had not been restored to all towns Monday night.

In Paulsner County, 40 families were homeless and 188 others had heavy storm damage. Hail and heavy winds weakened as much damage in that area as the tornadoes.

Damage in the Conway area was estimated at $250,000. Damage in the Clarksburg area was estimated at over $100,000.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Little Rock said the storms were caused by a squall line that moved over Arkansas and Missouri ahead of a cold front. Heavy thunderstorms and tornadoes are just effects of such squall lines.

Sullivan, Paar Hurl Liar Charges

By ANDREW MEISELS

NEW YORK (AP)— Jack Paar said on the air Monday night that "Ed Sullivan is a liar"—and he challenged Sullivan to sue him for libel. Sullivan said he had no intention of suing.

Paar told his nationwide television audience that Sullivan did not tell the truth about the reason for cancellation of their scheduled TV debate. In a courtroom, under oath, Sullivan would have to tell the truth, Paar said, indicating this was the reason for his challenge.

Sullivan was to have debated Paar on Paar's NBC program Monday night over the question of performers' fees.

The debate was called off Monday afternoon, with each side blaming the other.

Sullivan, a newspaper columnist and star of his own show on CBS, said Paar had "welshed" on arrangements for the debate.

Paar said this was not true. He said Sullivan did not appear on the videotaped show before a studio audience because "he would commit suicide before an audience."

Paar said all of Sullivan's ground rules for the debate had been agreed to—with the exception of two points.

First, Paar wanted an audience.

Second, Paar said he wanted the debaters to be able to ask each other questions, to discuss their differences, rather than each make a formal statement and rebuttal.

Asked to comment on Paar's statement, Sullivan said he did not intend to sue but would still like to debate.

"I won't tell a lie about Paar," he said. "Despite all the smoke-screen and all the publicity from NBC, this fellow walked out on the debate."

The argument came out into the open last week when Sullivan announced that any performer who appeared on Paar's low-budget late-hour telecast for the union minimum of $820 would receive no more for appearing on Sullivan's Sunday night variety program.

Performers receive as much as $7,500 for appearing on Sullivan's show.

Patterson Gets Off Canvas to Kayo Ingemar

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson's sixth round knockout of gambling Ingemar Johansson has ended their thrilling, three-fight international series.

But what's ahead for the champion, happy in victory but disappointed over his performance, probably won't be known for a while.

It's doubtful that Sonny Liston, the No. 1 contender from Philadelphia will get the lucrative shot although he said again he'd gladly "fight Patterson for nothing just to get a shot at the title."

More likely is Henry Cooper, the British champion, it was learned, although Patterson didn't bring up his name in his post-fight interview.

A left hook to the jaw, a right to the jaw and a chopping right behind the Swede's left ear ended Johansson's bold bid to regain the crown at 2:45 of the sixth round of the scheduled 15-round in Convention Hall.

But the 206½ pound Viking, shrugged off again as a 4-1 underdog, almost pulled off another startling upset in the first round when he floored the slow-starting champ twice with thumping jolts to the jaw with his trusty right.

Ingo, himself went down from a left hook to the jaw in the pulsating first round that had the 15,000 fans roaring.

Ingo came to fight, and no question about that. He was in there all the way and was going after the 194 pound champion when Floyd struck with his flashing combination left and right in the sixth round.

The husky Swede rose up on one knee at nine but then fell back as his legs twisted. He tripped and fell back at the final count of ten.

"I thought I was up in time, and I'm sorry I wasn't," said Johansson. "When he (Referee Billy Reagen) say eight, I get a little too anxious and I fell."

Reagen said "I had just finished the count of a full ten when he tried to get up. He didn't make the full count."

"When I took him to the corner, he didn't know where he was at."

Gopher Control Machine

Pictured above is a tree planter converted to a machine to put poisoned seed out for gophers.

In some of the sandy sections of the county the gophers have destroyed as much as one-half of the grass in pastures and cut down the production of grass on another one-fourth.

These gophers make burrows under the ground and feed on grass and tree roots sometimes pull small pine seedlings into the burrow and consume the entire seedling. They also come to the surface of the ground leaving a mound of dirt which covers up grass and makes mowing pastures difficult.

Unless some control measures are taken they will multiply and spread to other areas. The above machine makes a burrow about seven inches under the surface of the ground and plants poisoned grain in the burrow. These burrows are spaced at twenty feet apart and apply 1½ lbs. of poisoned grain per acre have proven to be 100% effective.

If enough farmers are interested the Hempstead County Soil Conservation District will try to get a contractor to make a machine. The cost to the farmer would be $1.25 per acre. It would be good to treat land early before the gophers spread to a larger area. If you are interested call at the Soil Conservation Office.

He said he would like to fight Patterson a fourth time, but the New Yorker, 26, said that's out and other contenders will get the chance.

The beginning was almost like the first fight in which Ingo, a 5-1 underdog, dropped Floyd seven times in the third round and won on a technical knockout. Patterson became the first ex-heavy champ to regain the crown when he flattened the Swede with a left hook to the jaw in the fifth round last June.

Pirates Run Down All Opposition

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, backing second-line pitching with the clutch hitting of their front-line batters, have run down all opposition in the early stages of the exhibition baseball season.

Getting a six-hit pitching performance from three rookies, the Pirates used Dick Schofield's two-run homer and a run-producing single by Joe Christopher for a 4-2 victory over the Kansas City A's Monday that brought their unblemished record to 4-0.

The new Washington Senators also are undefeated after edging Baltimore's winless Orioles 4-13. The new Los Angeles Angels dropped their first in three games with a 16-13 loss to San Francisco Giants.

Elsewhere on a rain-shortened program, the transplanted Minnesota Twins made it into the victory column by whipping the New York Yankees 10-6, and the Chicago Cubs beat the Cleveland Indians 4-2.

The Detroit-Milwaukee, Cincinnati-St. Louis and Philadelphia-Los Angeles Dodgers games in Florida were canceled because of rain.

The Pirates clinched it in the fourth on Christopher's single before Smokey Burgess walked to force in a run and give pitching fledglings Tom Parsons, Al Jackson and Earl Francis some working room. Ken Johnson, who gave up Schofield's homer, took the loss.

The other eight players selected were: Jerry Churchill and Jerry Purifoy of Fairview; Fite and Gourley of Malvern; Bobby Burnett of Smackover; Larry Rankin of Magnolia; Larry James of Camden and Johnston of Cross.

Calhoun finished the season with 372 points for a 13.3 average per game. He hit 62.4% of his free throws, 41.6% of his field goals and took an average of 4 rebounds a game.

Robinson took 200 points for the season for a 10.4 average per game. He hit 60.4% of his free throws, 31.5% of his field goals, and averaged 8 rebounds per game.

Coach Billy Mitchell said this of the team and the season "I am very proud of the two boys that were selected by the coaches to the all-district team. Both of these boys deserved the honor. It is too bad that all five of the starters could not make the district team. To me, each boy is all district and all state material. The people of this city should be proud of these boys for their conduct on and off the basketball court. I received nothing but compliments for their conduct at the state tournament."

He added "I would like to take this opportunity to thank the fans and especially the members of the senior basketball squad for making my first year as senior high basketball coach such a pleasant one."

for the A's.

Felipe Alou and rookie catcher Tom Haller led the Giants' attack in the seven-homer slugfest with two each while first-year outfielder Manuel Mota also homered, then tripled in a nine-run seventh inning uprising. Bob Cerv and Earl Averill connected for 4th Angels.

Earl Batey's grand slam homer in the ninth beat the winless Yankees after a three-run shot by Zorro Versalles and Harmon Killebrew's two-run blast had kept the Twins close. Shortstop Fritz Brickell paced the New York attack with a homer and three singles.
